Much Blacussion by Mexican Bankers.

A special from woch placession by Mexican Bankers.

New York, June 28. A special from the City of Mex co says: The tremendous drop in the price of silver Monday and Tuesday, bringing a chance in New York to 66 per cent., has created much discussion among Mexican bankers. They generally regard the present situation as offering a great opportunity for the United States to force bi-pietallism upon Europe. It is suggested by one man that the United States might issue a gold loan of $500,000,000, four and a halt per cent. bonds. It is said it would be immediately taken up in Europe where all other government securities would immediately Jerop heavily, not being able to compete with American bonds. Then, according to the theory, gold would flow into the United States, and in a short space of time bi-metallism would have to be adopted by Europe, and the enormous quantity of silver held by the American treasury would rise in value, the whole transaction being immensely profitable to the United States. The United States, it is urged, could afford to undertake such a gigantic financial operation, being able to feed it, and has now a wonderful opportunity to settle the silver question permanently. question permanently.

Its Effect in Montup. RITTE, Mont., June 28. The drop of silver to sevenly-three cents has caused consternation in this city among the mige owners and miners. The principal silver producers say unless there is an immediate change for the better all work will be suspended.

They were about 3,000 feet from the earth's surface and still going eastward when the dangling specks beneath the inflated ball were seen to become detached. Then it was that a general cry of horror arose. Directly beneath the spot where the two breathing specks must fall lay a big ship, the W. T. Walker, with her naked masts upturned with tapering suggestiveness.

Down, down came the parachutes with crucl swiftness. The moments seemed like hours. Another tragedy, such as has been so common in neronautics of late, seemed inevitable.

"She has struck!" "No, she hasu't!" "Yes, she has 'm were the whispered exclanations of the spectators, and the parachute was among the Walker's rigging.

The woman just escaped the main-mast, and then the big umbrella to which she clung caught on a yard, bringing up Miss keyes with a fearful jrk and a wrench. She hung suspended helplessly between sky and bny, afraid to stir lest the purachute should be dragged over the yard and she be precipitated to the deck helow.

Speedily the seamen on board rap up the rigging and secured the parachute, when the daring woman was reached and assisted to the deck. Hence she soon came usbore in a launch and walked to her every-dny clothes, protesting in a dazed, nervous way that she was "all right."

And the monk? Why, he fell clear of the ship into the hay, clang to his parachute like a gritty little simtan until picked up, and will probably be forced to repeat this (to him) senseless flying act next Sunday.

Carelessness In Laying Water Pipes. Carelesaness In Laying Water Pipes.

A serious drawback to the construction of low priced houses is the awkward and inconsiderate arrangement of water pipes and plumbing. It is no unusual thing in passing through a town to flad the streets torn up in a dozen places in order that frozen water pipes may be thawed out. Floors and cellings are torn up, walls are weakened by digging through, and great masses of frozen earth are upheaved simply because the plumber has lacked either the common sense or common honesty to do the right kind of a job of work at the outset. Every pipe and system of pipes should be placed low enough te avoid all danger of freezing.

This is neither impossible ways a kind to s is neither impossible nor as difficult This is neither impossible nor as difficult as one might suppose who listens to the artisans who are engaged in this sort of work. There is no sense whatever in baving frozen water pipes. That such things are is a diagrace to the people who arrange them. A little boxing or suitable packing would effectually prevent all such misfortunes. New York Ledger.
